ON THE MEANNESS OF A STATE OF DEPENDENCE.

FEW virtues have been more praiſed by moraliſts, than generoſity; every practical treatiſe of Ethics tends to increaſe our ſenſibility of the diſtreſſes of others, and to relax the graſp of frugality. Philoſophers that are poor, praiſe it becauſe they are gainers by its effects; and the opulent Seneca himſelf has written a treatiſe on benefits, though he was known to give nothing away.

But among the many who have enforced the duty of giving, I'm ſurpriſed there are none to inculcate the ignominy of receiving, to ſhew that by every favour we accept, we in ſome meaſure forfeit our native freedom, and that a ſtate of continual dependence on the generoſity of others is a life of gradual debaſement.

Were men taught to deſpiſe the receiving obligations with the ſame force of reaſoning and declamation that they are inſtructed to confer them, we might then ſee every perſon in ſociety filling up the requiſite duties of his ſtation with cheerful induſtry, neither relaxed by hope, nor ſullen from diſappointment.

Every favour a man receives, in ſome meaſure ſinks him below his dignity, and in proportion to the value of the benefit, or the frequency of its acceptance, he gives up ſo much of his natural independence. He therefore, who thrives upon the unmerited bounty of another, if he has any ſenſibility, ſuffers the worſt of ſervitude; the ſhackled ſlave may murmur without reproach, but the humble dependent is taxed with ingratitude upon every ſymptom of diſcontent; the one may rave round the walls of his cell, but the other lingers in all the ſilence of mental confinement. To increaſe his diſtreſs, every new obligation but adds to the former load which kept the vigorous mind from riſing; till at laſt, elaſtic no longer, it ſhapes itſelf to conſtraint, and puts on habitual ſervility.

It is thus with the feeling mind; but there are ſome, who, born without any ſhare of ſenſibility, receive favour after favour, and ſtill cringe for more, who accept the offer of generoſity with as little reluctance as the wages of merit, and even make thanks for paſt benefits an indirect petition for new; ſuch I grant can ſuffer no debaſement from dependence, ſince they were originally as vile as was poſſible to be; dependence degrades only the ingenuous, but leaves the ſordid mind in priſtine meanneſs. In this manner therefore, long continued generoſity is miſplaced, or it is injurious; it either finds a man worthleſs, or it makes him ſo; and true it is, that the perſon who is contented to be often obliged, ought not to have been obliged at all.

Yet while I deſcribe the meanneſs of a life of continued dependence, I would not be thought to include thoſe natural or political ſubordinations which ſubſiſt in every ſociety, for in ſuch, though dependence is exacted from the inferior, yet the obligation on either ſide is mutual. The ſon muſt rely upon his parent for ſupport, but the parent lies under the ſame obligations to give, that the other has to expect; the ſubordinate officer muſt receive the commands of his ſuperior, but for this obedience the former has a right to demand an intercourſe of favour; ſuch is not the dependence I would depreciate, but that where every expected favour muſt be the reſult of mere benevolence in the giver, where the benefit can be kept without remorſe, or transferred without injuſtice. The character of a legacy-hunter, for inſtance, is deteſtable in ſome countries, and deſpicable in all; this univerſal contempt of a man who infringes upon none of the laws of ſociety, ſome moraliſts have arraigned as a popular and unjuſt prejudice; never conſidering the neceſſary degradations a wretch muſt undergo, who previouſly expects to grow rich by benefits, without having either natural or ſocial claims to enforce his petitions.

But this intercourſe of benefaction and acknowledgment is often injurious even to the giver as well as the receiver; a man can gain but little knowledge of himſelf, or of the world, amidſt a circle of thoſe whom hope or gratitude has gathered round him; their unceaſing humiliations muſt neceſſarily increaſe his comparative magnitude, for all men meaſure their own abilities by thoſe of their company; thus being taught to over rate his merit, he in reality leſſens it; increaſing in confidence, but not in power, his profeſſions end in empty boaſt, his undertakings in ſhameful diſappointment.

It is perhaps one of the ſevereſt misfortunes of the great, that they are in general, obliged to live among men whoſe real value is leſſened by dependence, and whoſe minds are enſlaved by obligation. The humble companion may have at firſt accepted patronage with generous views, but ſoon he feels the mortifying influence of conſcious inferiority, by degrees ſinks into a flatterer, and from flattery at laſt degenerates into ſtupid veneration. To remedy this the great often diſmiſs their old dependents, and take new. Such changes are falſly imputed to levity, falſehood, or caprice, in the patron, ſince they may be more juſtly aſcribed to the client's gradual deterioration.

From a late LONDON PAPER.

A Studious gentleman very ſubject to head-achs, ſneezing violently, a few days ſince, as he was writing, ſaw ſome little atoms ſcattered upon a clean ſheet of paper which lay before him; and after a while he perceived them move. Finding that they were inſects, and attributing his head-ach now to them, he carefully carried the paper to Dr. Hill, at Bayſwater. That gentleman ſmiled on viewing them with a Microſcope, and told him he had Mignonette in his chamber, for this was an inſect that lived in the flowers of that plant. 'Tis probable that by his often ſmelling it, he had ſnuffed up many of theſe little inſects: They are ſlender creatures, covered over with prickly hairs, and are in continual motion: They have four wings, each made of a ſingle feather, and a pair of horns of wonderful ſharpneſs. Dr. Hill collected a great quantity of them, and by ſhaking a piece of the plant, many have ſeen them with aſtoniſhment and horror. They are ſo light, they may eaſily be ſnuffed up; or, as they have wings, may be in the air of all the chamber where flowers are; and the way to their occaſioning head-achs of the moſt dreadful kind is very eaſy. The late Queen had head-achs that were cured by removing violets from her chamber; and perhaps they erred who thought the ſweetneſs of the flower the cauſe. A very eminent phyſician lately cured a lady of this complaint by a ſtrong ſnuff; and live creatures in great numbers were thrown out in ſneezing, as ſmall as points of pins, but in motion; probably they were of the ſame kind; and that many of theſe complaints ariſe from them. Common Snuff muſt be good in theſe caſes, for Tobacco kills all inſects.

TO THE PRINTER.

THERE cannot a greater judgment befal a Country than ſuch a dreadful ſpirit of diviſion as rends a government into two diſtinct people, and makes them greater ſtrangers and more averſe to one another, than if they were actually two different nations. The effects of ſuch a diviſion are pernicious to the laſt degree, not only with regard to thoſe advantages which they give the common enemy, but to thoſe private evils which they produce in the heart of almoſt every particular perſon. This influence is very fatal to mens morals and their underſtandings; it ſinks the virtue of a nation, and not only ſo, but deſtroys even common ſenſe.

A FURIOUS party-ſpirit, when it rages in its full violence, exerts itſelf in civil war and bloodſhed; and when it is under its greateſt reſtraints naturally breaks out in falſhood, detraction, calumny, and a partial adminiſtration of juſtice. In a word, it fills a nation with ſpleen and rancour, and extinguiſhes all the ſeeds of good-nature, compaſſion and humanity.

PLUTARCH ſays very finely, that a man ſhould not allow himſelf to hate even his enemies, becauſe, ſays he, if you indulge this paſſion in ſome occaſions, it will riſe itſelf in others; if you hate your enemies, you will contract ſuch a vicious habit of mind, as by degrees will break out upon thoſe who are your friends, or thoſe who are indifferent to you. I might here obſerve how admirably this precept of morality (which derives the malignity of hatred from the paſſion itſelf, and not from its object) anſwers to that great rule which was dictated to the world about an hundred years before this Philoſopher wrote; but inſtead of that, I ſhall only take notice, with a real grief of heart, that the minds of many good men among us appear ſoured with party-principles, and alienated from one another in ſuch a manner, as ſeems to me altogether inconſiſtent with the dictates either of reaſon or religion. Zeal for a public cauſe is apt to breed paſſions in the hearts of virtuous perſons, to which the regard of their own private intereſt would never have betrayed them.

IF this party-ſpirit has ſo ill an effect on our morals, it has likewiſe a very great one upon our judgments. We often hear a poor inſipid paper or pamphlet cried up, and ſometimes a noble piece depreciated, by thoſe who are of a different principle from the author. One who is actuated by this ſpirit is almoſt under an incapacity of diſcerning either real blemiſhes or beauties. A man of merit in a different principle, is like an object ſeen in water ſtraight and entire it may be in itſelf. For this reaſon there is ſcarce a perſon of any figure in England, who does not go by two contrary characters, as oppoſite to one another as light and darkneſs. Knowledge and learning ſuffer in a particular manner from this ſtrange prejudice, which at preſent prevails amongſt all ranks and degrees in the Britiſh nation. As men formerly became eminent in learned ſocieties by their parts and acquiſitions, they now diſtinguiſh themſelves by the warmth and violence with which they eſpouſe their reſpective parties. Books are valued upon the like conſiderations: An abuſive ſcurrilous ſtile paſſes for Satyr, and a dull ſcheme of party-notions is called fine writing.

THERE is one piece of ſophiſtry practiſed by both ſides, and that is the taking any ſcandalous ſtory that has been ever whiſpered or invented of a private man, for a known undoubted truth, and raiſing ſuitable ſpeculations upon it. Calumnies that have been never proved, or have been often refuted, are the ordinary poſtulatums of theſe infamous ſcribblers, upon which they proceed as upon firſt principles granted by all men, though in their hearts they know they are falſe, or at beſt very doubtful. When they have laid theſe foundations of ſcurrility, it is no wonder that their ſuperſtructure is every way anſwerable to them. If this ſhameleſs practice of the preſent age endures much longer, praiſe and reproach will ceaſe to be motives of action in good men.

THERE are certain periods of time in all governments when this inhuman ſpirit prevails. Italy was long torn in pieces by the Guelfes and Gibillines, and France by thoſe who were for and againſt the league: But it is very unhappy for a man to be born in ſuch a ſtormy and tempeſtuous ſeaſon. It is the reſtleſs ambition of artful men that thus breaks a people into factions, and draws ſeveral well meaning perſons to their intereſt by a ſpecious concern for their country. How many honeſt minds are filled with uncharitable and barbarous notions, out of their zeal for the public good? What cruelties and outrages would they not commit againſt men of an adverſe party, whom they would honour and eſteem, if inſtead of conſidering them as they are repreſented, they know them as they are? Thus are perſons of the greateſt probity ſeduced into ſhamful errors and prejudices, and made bad men even by that nobleſt of principles, the love of their country. I cannot here forbear mentioning the famous Spaniſh proverb. If there were neither fools nor knaves in the world, all people would be of one mind.

FOR my own part, I could heartily wiſh that all honeſt men would enter into an aſſociation, for the ſupport of one another againſt the endeavours of thoſe whom they ought to look upon as their common enemies, whatſoever ſide they may belong to. Were there ſuch an honeſt body of neutral forces, we never ſhould ſee the worſt of men in great figures of life, becauſe they are uſeful to a party; nor the beſt unregarded, becauſe they are above practiſing thoſe methods which would be grateful to their factions. We ſhould then ſingle every criminal out of the herd and hunt him down, however formidable and overgrown he might appear: On the contrary, we ſhould ſhelter diſtreſſed innocence, and defend virtue, however beſet with contempt or ridicule, envy or defamation. In ſhort, we ſhould not any longer regard our fellow ſubjects as Whigs or Tories, but ſhould make the man of merit our friend, and the villain our enemy.

SPECTATOR.

ANECDOTE.

SOME time ago his Majeſty of France, being greatly diſtreſſed for money, aſked the Duke de Orlean's advice as to the moſt ſalutary method of raiſing a large ſum; to which the Duke anſwered, "Pleaſe your Majeſty, I know but one, that is to give orders for the immediate beheading of the Duke d'Aiguillon, and let every ſpectator who chuſes to ſee the execution, pay five livres; and I make no doubt but that three fourths of the city of Paris will pay with pleaſure to ſee that ſhow."

Charles-Town, July 14, 1772.

THE Subſcriber is much obliged to his planting Friends, who, by landing their Crops at his Wharf for three Years paſt, have thereby introduced it to Buſineſs.---He acted as Factor during that Time, purely to prevent his Friends being Sufferers by their intended Kindneſs to him, as it was very induſtriouſly inſinuated, that Rice would not ſell at his Wharf: But as he is now well convinced, and flatters himſelf all his Friends are fully ſo too, that their Crops landed in Barge or ſmall Parcels, will ſell altogether as well at his Wharf, as at any other in Charles-Town; and that any Gentlemen, principally concerned in the Factorage Way, will now have no Objection to receive and ſell Rice or Indico landed thereat: He therefore chooſes to decline that Buſineſs, finding it more than he is able to go through. He hopes his good Friends will ſtill ſend their Crops a this Wharf, where they may depend he ſhall take Care HIMSELF that their Boats have all poſſible Diſpatch.

As to the Safety and Conveniency of his Docks and Stores, he is ſure there are none preferable to them in Town in theſe Reſpects, and few (if any) Barns in the Country are cooler and more ſecure from Fire; and 'tis almoſt impoſſible for a Barrel of Rice to be loſt or ſtolen in Landing or Shipping at his Wharf. Such Gentlemen as uſe his Wharf conſtantly, may depend on never wanting Storage whenever they do not like the going Price:---No prudent Planter but muſt be convinced, that this is a Matter of the utmoſt Conſequence to him, as many, for theſe three Years paſt, have had their Crops (when landed in Town) diſpoſed of very much againſt their own Inclinations and Judgments, merely for Want of Storage; and this he is ſure has been the Caſe, particularly this Year ſeveral Times, notwithſtanding the Shortneſs of the Crop.

Meſſrs. GIBBES & HORT,

Who have had long Experience in the FACTORAGE BUSINESS in all its Branches, and confine themſelves to that only, have taken the Charge of his Scales, and will tranſact their Buſineſs on his Wharf.---To theſe Gentlemen he begs Leave to recommend ſuch of his Friends who are not otherwiſe engaged.

Chriſtopher Gadſden.

N. B. Any Gentlemen in Trade may depend on not wanting STORAGE for ſuch Parcels of Rice as they purchaſe at his Wharf.

ANECDOTE.

WE have a remarkable inſtance in George Villiers, created by James I. Earl, Marquis, and afterwards Duke of Buckingham, and inveſted with many high and lucrative offices, of the inſtability of human grandeur. He is deſcribed to have been a gay capricious nobleman, of ſome wit, and great vivacity; the miniſter of riot, and counſellor of infamous practices; the ſlave of intemperance; a pretended Atheiſt, without honour or principle, œconomy or diſcretion; and who, after various mal-proceedings and viciſſitudes of fortune, after a juſtly merited diſgrace from the very court which foſtered him, and an impriſonment in the Tower for ſome time; at laſt, in the reign of Charles II. deſerted by all his friends, and deſpiſed by all the world, died in the greateſt want and obſcurity. Mr. Pope has ſo beautifully painted theſe circumſtances in his epiſtle "On the Uſe of Riches," that we flatter ourſelves they will not be thought ill applied.

"In the worſt inn's worſt room, with mat half hung,
The floors of plaiſter, and the walls of dung;
On once a flock-bed, but repair'd with ſtraw,
With tape-ty'd curtains, never meant to draw;
The George and Garter dangling from that bed,
Where taudry yellow ſtrove with dirty red;
Great Villiers lies:----Alas! how chang'd from Him,
That life of pleaſure, and that ſoul of whim!
Gallant and gay, in Cliveden's proud alcove,
The Bower of wanton Shrewſbury and love;
Or, juſt as gay at council, in a ring,
Of mimick ſtateſmen, and their merry King.
No wit to flatter, left of all his ſtore!
No fool to laugh at, which he valued more!
There, victor of his health, of fortune, friends,
And fame, this Lord of uſeleſs thouſands ends!"

In a Garden belonging to Mr. TYERS, at Denbigh's in Surry, is a Walk terminated by a beautiful Alcove called Il Penſeroſo: In which are two elegantly carved Pedeſtals, on which are placed a Gentleman and Lady's Scull; each of which bear addreſſes the Male and Female Viſitants.

The LADY'S SCULL.

BLUSH not, ye Fair! to own me---but be wiſe;
Nor turn from ſad Mortality your Eyes:
Fame ſays (and Fame alone can tell how true)
I---once---was lovely, and belov'd---like you.
Where are my Votaries, where my Flatterers now?
Fled, with the Subject of each Lover's Vow.
Adieu the Roſes red, and Lily's white;
Adieu thoſe Eyes, that made the Darkneſs Light:
No more, alas! thoſe coral Lips are ſeen,
Nor longer breathes the fragrant Gale between.
Turn from your Mirrour, and behold in me
At once what thouſands can't, or dare not ſee:
Unvarniſh'd I the real Truth impart,
Nor here am plac'd, but to direct the Heart.
Survey me well, ye fair ones! and believe,
The Grave may terrify, but can't deceive.
On Beauty's fragil State no more depend;
Here Youth and Pleaſure, Age and Sorrow end:
Here drops the Maſk, here ſhuts the final Scene,
Nor differs grave Threeſcore from gay Fifteen.
All preſs alike to that ſame Goal---the Tomb,
Where wrinkled Laura ſmiles at Chloe's Bloom.
When Coxcombs flatter, and when Fools adore,
Here learn the Leſſon, to be vain no more:
Yet Virtue ſtill againſt Decay can arm,
And even lend Mortality a Charm.

The GENTLEMAN'S SCULL.

WHY ſtart?---the Caſe is yours---or will be ſoon;
Some Years, perhaps---perhaps, another Moon:
Life, at its utmoſt Length, is ſtill a Breath,
And thoſe, who longeſt dream, muſt wake in Death.
Like you, I once thought every Bliſs ſecure,
And Gold of ev'ry Ill the certain Cure:
Till ſteep'd in Sorrow, and beſieg'd with Pain,
Too late, I found all earthly Riches vain;
Diſeaſe with Scorn threw back the ſordid Fee,
And Death ſtill anſwer'd---What is Gold to me?
Fame, Titles, Honours, next I vainly ſought;
And Fools obſequious nurs'd the childiſh Thought.
Circled with brib'd Applauſe and purchas'd Praiſe,
I built on endleſs Grandeur, endleſs Days;
'Till Death awoke me from my Dream of Pride,
And laid a prouder Beggar by my Side.
Pleaſure I courted, and obey'd my Taſte;
The Banquet ſmil'd, and ſmil'd the gay Repaſt:
A loathſome Carcaſe was my conſtant Care,
And Worlds were ranſack'd, but for me to ſhare.
Go on, vain Man! to Luxury be firm;
Yet know---I feaſted, but to feaſt a Worm!
Already ſure leſs terrible I ſeem,
And you, like me, ſhall own---that Life's a Dream.
Farewell! remember! nor my Words deſpiſe---
The only Happy are the early Wiſe.

LONDON.

A foreign gentleman of diſtinction now in London, (and who appears to be very converſant in the ſecret hiſtory of French politics) lately in diſcourſe related, That in the days of Richlieu and Mazarine (and perhaps not leſs in ſucceeding times) it was not unuſual in many caſtles and places of reſidence of theſe miniſters of ſtate to have ſecret traps, or what were called les oubliettes, which were horrid contrivances for ſuch as the miniſter, either through enmity or policy, meant to deſtroy, or get out of the way, knowing that "Dead men tell no tales." Theſe infernal engines of deſtruction were ſo formed, that after diſmiſſion, perhaps very politely, from the miniſter, the unhappy victim was, by the different turn of a door, ſent down a different ſtair caſe from what he came up; then of a ſudden, when about half-way, by means of ſprings, it opened, and let the devoted wretch into a well or pit ſeveral hundred fathoms deep, where he never was heard of more. The relater obſerved, that many of thoſe wells or pits are now exiſting, and on ſearch being made therein not long ſince, among numbers of ſkeletons or bones, have been found divers watches, ſnuff-boxes, money, and valuable effects, no doubt belonging to thoſe victims of ſuch cruel enmity, and vile policy.----Think of this, ye heedleſs Sons of Liberty, and of the generous cauſe, and let it not ever periſh in your hands, or ye may in after times be made to paſs through the oubliettes too! The ſame intelligencer added, that it was not uncommon for ſuch miniſters having ſome deſperate act to execute (ſuch, for example, as burning ſtores, in an enemy's port) to ſeek out ſome needy or greedy wretch fit for the purpoſe, to promiſe him mountains on the accompliſhment of the deſign of his villanies; but to give him but little earneſt, or preſent pay, and then, if ſucceſsful, inſtead of his reward, to make him, alas! paſs through one of theſe oubliettes, or perhaps, returning on board a ſhip ordered to bring the villain back, ordering him to be diſpatched by the way, throwing him overboard with a ſtone about his neck, on the ſame pious principle, viz. that "Dead men tell no tales." Think of this, and who will then doubt of the poſſibility of burning the ſtores lately at Portſmouth by our ancient rivals, or "old friends, old foes."

On the 5th of April died, at Corney, in Cumberland, John Noble, aged 114 years; what is very remarkable, he never experienced what ſickneſs was.

M. de Voltaire on Phyſicians. From his Queſtions concerning the Encyclopedie.

PHYSICIANS live in great cities; there are few of them in the country. The reaſon of this is obvious. In great cities there are rich patients; and among thoſe debauchees the pleaſures of the table, and the gratifications of the paſſions, give riſe to a variety of diſeaſes. Dumoulin, the phyſician, obſerved at his death, that he left behind him two great Phyſicians, Regimen and River Water.

I knew at London, a Phyſician of the name of Brown, who had practiſed in Barbados. He had a ſugar-work and negroes; and having been robbed of a conſiderable ſum, he called together his ſlaves; My friends, ſaid he, the great ſerpent appeared to me during the night, and told me, that the perſon who ſtole my money ſhould, at this inſtant, have a parrot's feather at the point of his noſe. The thief immediately put his hand to his noſe. It is you, cried the maſter, that robbed me; the great ſerpent juſt now told me ſo! By this method the Phyſician recovered his money. This piece of quackery is not to be condemned; but, in order to practiſe it, one muſt have to do with negroes.

DEATH and the DOCTOR.

WHEN Ars'nick lay ill, and 'twas thought he was dying,
His friends and relations around him were crying,
And made with their 'plaints ſuch a horrible din,
That Death, who was paſſing and heard it, went in.
What the deuce! ſaid the Demon, good folk, is the matter,
That ye make round the Doctor ſo dev'liſh a clatter?
Suppoſe he were going, what boots your repining?
But leave off however, your 'wailing and whining,
And fear not my preſence, altho' I look grim,
For I know my own intereſt too well to kill him.

A melancholy Accident happened at the above Fire to one Mr. Duncan, a Lock-ſmith, eſteemed an ingenious and induſtrious young Man, occaſioned by a heavy Trunk of Goods being thrown out of the upper Part of an adjacent back Store, which unluckily fell on him, and bruiſed him in ſo terrible a Manner, that his Life is deſpaired of.

About Half after Six o'Clock Yeſterday Evening, a very ſevere Storm of Thunder and Lightning began here, and continued till paſt One o'Clock this Morning: In the Beginning of which, the Brig Charming-Betſey, Noble Hinman, Maſter, lying in Aſhley-River, was ſtruck with Lightning, which did very great Damage to her Maſts, Yards, Rigging, Sails, one of her Pumps, melted the Pitch and forced the Oakum out of her Seams on Deck, &c. then went down between Decks, killed a Negro Man, and hurt three of the Sailors.

CHARLES CROUCH,

Has received in the laſt Veſſels from LONDON,

A CONSIGNMENT

Of the ſeveral ARTICLES undermentioned, which may be had at his Printing-Office in Elliott-Street, on the moſt reaſonable Terms, viz.

A FRESH PARCEL of Dr. KEYSER'S FAMOUS PILLS,
(Perhaps the only REAL ONES that can be had in the Province at preſent)

With FULL DIRECTIONS for their Uſe in all CASES.

Where may be ſeen, A NARRATIVE of the Effects of Dr. KEYSER'S MEDICINE, with an Account of its ANALYSIS, by the Members of the Royal Academy of Sciences, ſhewing it to be the mildeſt, ſafeſt, and moſt efficacious Remedy ever yet diſcovered.

 It were needleſs to trouble the Public with more Encomiums on the Effects of this Remedy, in every State of a certain Diſorder; in the Courſe of ſeveral Years, great Numbers of Perſons, ſuffering in almoſt every Stage of that Malady, who, after ſteadily attending to the Directions given with each Box, have declared their Recovery to a perfect State of Health.

In England the Duke of Bedford and Earl Ligonier, and in France the Dukes of Nivernois, Choiſeul, Praſlin, and the Marſhal Duke of Biron, have given public Teſtimony of many ſucceſsful Experiments made by the firſt Phyſicians and Surgeons, upon the moſt miſerable Spectacles, in an Army of Two Hundred Thouſand Soldiers, from whom Seven Thouſand Patients were ſelected, cured and diſmiſſed. The Gentlemen of the Faculty in Europe, after the moſt convincing Proofs in Favour of the Medicine, greatly contributed to eſtabliſh the Reputation of Dr. KEYSER'S PILLS, having pronounced the Uſe of them ſuperior in Efficacy to all the Modes of Practice hitherto diſcovered. They have perfectly reſtored to Health, Perſons afflicted with the Venereal Diſeaſe, Dropſical Diſorders, the Gravel, Palſy, Apoplexy, White-ſwellings, Stiff Joints, and the Aſthma.

Dr. NELSON'S ANTISCORBUTIC DROPS, which have been found by many Years Experience, to ſurpaſs all other Remedies hitherto diſcovered in the Cure of the Scurvy, Rheumatiſm, Yaws, Venereal Diſeaſe, Gleets and Seminal Weakneſſes, Ulcers of all Kinds, &c.

ESSENTIAL OIL of MINT. This is an excellent Remedy in Want of Appetite, reachings to vomit, and vomiting itſelf. It ſtrengthens the almoſt Paralytic Weakneſſes of the Stomach, and may be uſed either internally or externally; it is taken on a Lump of Sugar, from ten to twelve Drops.

Dr. RYAN'S Incomparable WORM-DESTROYING SUGAR PLUMBS.

Dr. HILL'S genuine TINCTURE of VALERIAN. This pleaſant Cordial and enlivening Medicine, is good againſt all Nervous Diſorders, Fits, Head-Achs, Weakneſs, Heavineſs, and Lowneſs of Spirits, Dimneſs of the Sight, Vapours and Melancholy, all Kinds of Convulſions, and Hyſteric Complaints, Epilepſies, as alſo againſt the Sickneſs of the Stomach, and Flatulencies, Obſtructions, and the Convulſive Aſthma, &c. The proper Uſe in all the above Caſes, may be ſeen in the Directions given with each Bottle.

Dr. BOERHAAVE'S GRAND BALSAM of HEALTH. An admirable Remedy for the Dry Belly-Ach, Cholic, Griping in the Bowels, Pain in the Stomach; it cleanſes the Stomach, and procures an Appetite.

ESSENCE of BALM of GILEAD, a grand Reſtorative of decayed Nature, good in all Seminal Weakneſſes, Hypochondriacal and Nervous Diſorders, with the Variety of Symptoms which indicate a weak and infirm Conſtitution.

Its cordial and balmy Quality, renders it alſo an agreeable palatable Liquor, and prodigiouſly refreſhing in the ſultry Heat of Summer; preventing thoſe Sinkings which over-power the Spirits in hot Weather. The proper Uſe of this noble Medicine may be ſeen in the Directions.

STOMACHIC LOZENGES. They ſtrengthen and fortify by their balſamic and nutritive Virtues the tender Veſſels of the Stomach, help Digeſtion, and promote Chylification; they melt in the Mouth like Sugar, are of a moſt agreeable taſte, and fail not to correct the Breath, and the impure Exhalations of the Stomach.

Where alſo may be had,

JOYCE'S GREAT AMERICAN BALSAM, extracted from the beſt Medicinal Herbs, &c. for the Cure of the following Diſorders, incident to human Nature; proved from Experience in New-York, Long-Iſland, and elſewhere, to equal, and rather exceed any Balſam, Eſſence, or Elixir, &c. exported from Europe here, for the ſeveral Diſorders hereafter mentioned.

For common green or freſh Wounds, it heals at once or twice dreſſing, by cloſing the Lips of the Wound, and laying on the Wound a Pledgit of Lint dipt in the Balſam. In Nervous Wounds, where the Blood Veſſels are divided, &c. it ſtops the Blood immediately, and heals by a few Applications. For the Cure of the moſt inveterate Ulcers, only waſh them and keep them clean, uſing firſt if there be any proud Fleſh, a common Cauſtick, to take the Excreſſence away, then apply the Balſam on Lint. If the Ulcers ſhould happen to be fiſtulous, inject by a Syringe, and after cloſe the Orifice with a Pledgit dipt in the Balſam, and ſo repeat. There are Witneſſes undeniable of the Balſam alone curing a Fiſtula in Ano, now preſent in New-York: The Author of this Balſam, (under God) will engage to cure a Fiſtula in Ano, even if the Rectum is perforated, without Inciſion, except as much by a Lancet to make Way for Injection, and no more. For the Cure of Colds, attended with violent Coughing, Pains in the Breaſt, Inflammation in the Throat and Glands, Difficulty of Breathing, being obſtructed by tough viſcid Phleghm; by taking a Tea Spoonful of the Balſam, mixed with Sugar or Honey, it quickly cures, taken twice a Day, Morning faſting, and at Night going to Bed. It is exceeding good in all Manner of Swellings; for violent Falls or inward Bruiſes, nothing is better, for it ſcatters coadgulated Blood, and ſtops Blood that might be occaſioned by the inward Parts being hurt, or a Rexis of Veſſels inwardly. In the Cure of Pleuriſy, after Bleeding (where it is required) give a Tea Spoonful three Times a Day, in Sugar, and between Times now and then 20 or 30 Drops of ſpirituous Nitri dulcis, that is the ſweet Spirits of Nitre.---It cures Conſumptions in them that are not too far gone, except they paſs the Age of Fifty, by taking of it inwardly three Times a Day, a full Tea Spoonful mix with Sugar or Honey, each Doſe. It ſtrengthens the Nerves and is good in all Nervous Diſorders, by taking of it inwardly and anointing the Parts outwardly, keeping warm.

THE AGUE TINCTURE.

The Patient muſt take a Table Spoonful of the ELIXIR, two Hours before the Approach of the Fit, and be immediatly put to Bed, and excited to ſweat, by being very warmly covered. Every Half Hour repeat the Doſe in the ſame Quantity, until he or ſhe has taken Four; you are to obſerve the giving it with a little Sugar, to make it palatable, and to let the laſt Doſe be given juſt as the Fit comes on; this will infallibly perform the Cure.

The GOLDEN TINCTURE,

Infallibly cures the Hysterick Convulsions, let them be ever so violent or long standing: It cures Children who are seized with Convulsions, when all other Remedies fail: It cures Persons who, from a Cold, or the Relique of a Pleurisy, may have a Pain in the Breast: It cures all Epilepsies and Convulsions in a few Hours, so as not to apprehend a Return,

For Adults, the Dose is 80 Drops in a Spoonful of Tea, or Water, to be repeated every three Hours, until the Fit is gone.

For those of Ten Years of Age, or thereabouts, who may be afflicted with Fits, give 20 Drops, in a Tea Spoonful of Water, and proceed as above.

To Children of a Month or younger, you may, with all Safety, give 5 Drops in a Tea Spoonful of Water, and repeat as before, which you may (under GOD) depend on a speedy and safe Cure.
